

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary (Stolen Honor) days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

I am honestly shocked that Sinclair would even consider requiring their stations to air something that is so blatantly politically partisan and mean-spirited. But beyond that, surely what they are attempting to do violates federal law.

I hope I'm not the only concerned American citizen that has expressed disapproval at what Sinclair is attempting to do, and I hope the FCC seriously looks into this matter.
